So sudden and extreme a change was hard to bear, and created a great demand for fuel and overcoats.

THE following passage from our "Holiday Notes" failed to get in type last week : The Christmas trade was better than we anticipated. All our dealers in Christmas goods we believe, did well. We were esper ally gratified at the large sales of holi-day hooks and matters allied thereto. Our lady friends, Misses Russel & Ellison, had s full house for over a week, and the day here not discovered it aromer, for we the amount of $225 00, besides what they it shways has had a larger bous-fide charged. Raynolds & Daniel also made paper, and that, too, among the very large sales in the same departments. These facts speak well for the intelligence and progress of literary taste in this conclusion of people.

Hinzle Still to the Front---Changes and Improvments. About a year since Hinzie added the Stove and Tinware line to his Grocery business and soon after it was announced through our columns that he was about to add to his new department a complete tinshop, to be under charge of a good, practical tinner, He however was disappointed at that time in securing the right man to take charge of the linshop; so that enterprise went over for a time. But now we find it has actually become a fixed fact. Happening in at Hinzie's on yesterday, we found the tinshop in complete operation, in charge of Mr. L. G. Jordan, a practical workman of experience and skill, he having had charge of a large establishment at another place. First-class work will be done and only the best material used. All kinds of work in that line, such as roofing, guttering, plumbing, repairing, etc. etc. will be done promptly in the best style, and at the most reason able rates. This is part of the programme of Maj. Hinzie, on which he has for some time been successfully engaged, to adapt his entire business here to the wants of our people. He carries on an extensive tinning business at Palestine, and furnishe work and supplies in that line to a considerable portion of Eastern Texas, so his new enterprise is but natural and for him easy of ccomplishment. In order to make room for a contemplated extension of his tin, stove and hardware department, Hingie is offering groceries at bottom prices for cash. So among his changes and improvements don't forget the grocery department.

A PRW words of explanation seem to be necessary to a proper understanding of the following communication from philosophe Vogelsang. Our readers will remember his apostrophe to the Texas Cowboy, signed "Birdsong", which we recently published as an advertisement. He cut it out and sent it to the Lampasas Dispatch, which published it. The Galveston News made some extracts, with the remark that "it might be a bird song, but it warbled a good deal like a donkey". The philosopher in return charges that the News garbled his effusion, and comes back at it as follows:
